Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I am a 68 year old retired gentleman who cannot afford to pay more for my cell phone service. I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund.

I understand that you would charge residential and other low volume users the same amount as high volume commercial customers. This is unfair!

I use my wireless phone for safety when I use my car. I don't want to pay more for this safety service. You should charge every user according to how much they use the service!

You should realize that cell phones are no longer a luxury item. It is a safety line that is used daily by women motorist, unsupervised children, retirees, the disabled and by the seriously ill who must have instant access to police and medical services. I will send a copy of this letter to the AARP.

You should actually be reducing the cost of basic cell phone service!!!

Sincerely, Godfrey Minns.

Sincerely,

Godfrey Minns
